

Quantum Capital Partners acquiring Stadlbauer Group

Salzburg, Austria; May 28, 2019 - The Stadlbauer Group, based in Salzburg, Austria, today announced its acquisition by Quantum Capital Partners. The conclusion of the transaction is subject to approval by the anti-trust authorities. The Salzburg group's expertise lies in the areas of R&D, production and the global marketing of the brands Carrera, Carrera RC, Schildkröt and Pustefix. Along with its own brands, the company is an expert in the marketing and distribution of top brands and licenses such as Bburago, Disney and Nintendo licensed products in Germany and Austria. The Stadlbauer Group is also a long-time, exclusive sales agency for Playmobil in Austria. The sales volume for the Stadlbauer Group is 90 million Euros.

Andreas Stadlbauer, the managing partner of the Stadlbauer Group, sees a forward-looking option for the continuing internationalization of the brands in the new configuration.

"We are convinced that, with the ideal partner Quantum Capital Partners, our well-known brands can be further developed more strongly and ideally for the challenging future of our industry. For us, it was a systematic selection process, which was the best solution for the Salzburg location and the company," says Andreas Stadlbauer. "Restructuring was necessary due to a new generation, and the market also demands certain changes, which can now be carried out. The decision to sell was based on strategic future prospects."

Dr. Norbert Frömmer will continue as CEO of the Stadlbauer Group. Andreas Stadlbauer will support the new holding with an eye to the future as a member of the advisory board.

Quantum Capital Partners (QCP) is a fast growing international investment company based in Munich, Germany.
